OANGE COUNTY'S total assessed valuation as computed today by County Assessor
James Sheep, is approximately $179,516,980.

The grand total assessed valuation last year, including railroads, operatives and non-operatives property, was $190,267,000.

Taxable property will amount to $179,516,980, representing an increase over last year's total of $11,- 223,980. Soldiers' exemptions, railroad and operative property taxed by the state, absorb the difference between the taxable property figure and the total of $190,267,000.

The largest unsecured personal property tax collection ever made between March and July was handled by Sheep's force this year, he said. The collection amounted to $1,153,000. The month of June brought in the largest share of this money, accounting for $1,-

A. Valuation Drops
Santa Ana's assessed valuation was not at $190,267,000. The figure last year was $190,267,000. Sheep stated that this is an approximate figure, pointing out that adjustments will be made where persons own property in two localities, which must be segregated.

Lack of Discipline

"What was I to do in face of this propaganda which had undermined part of our youth to such an extent as to create an insurpational state of lack of discipline in our university, demonstrating the gravity which the problem might acquire in the near future?

"It is no secret that almost all European and American governments justify alarm by the proportions which this vast international plan against their people was assuming, were obliged to take preventive and, at times, violent measures radically to curtail this agitation.

"I limited myself to expelling the agitators, which is a constitutional measure and which all countries exercise even as a simple police action."

Kerby To Oppose Hunt In Arizona Governor Contest

PHOENIX, Ariz., July 3.—Formal announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor in the September primaries was made today by Secretary of State James H. Kerby.

Kerby will compete for the nomination with present Gov. George W. P. Hunt, now serving his sixth term as the highest executive of the state. Kerby is said that in event of his selection he would retain Governor Hunt as chairman of the Colorado river commission.

The assessed valuation of the city of Fullerton was set at $8,357,885; Anaheim's value was placed at $7,239,826; Orange was credited with $5,258,215; Huntington Beach with $3,197,215; Newport Beach, $5,477,630; La Habra, $4,010; Brea, $1,021,105; Placentia, $412,735; Tustin, $564,945; San Clemente, $574,035; Seal Beach, $2,441,665; and Laguna Beach, $2,844,835.

These figures also may change with adjustments, Sleeper said. In making public the assessed valuations, Sleeper pointed out that his office handles more money than any other county assessor's office in the state with the exception of that in Los Angeles.

DISFRANCHISEMENT OF NEGRO SCORED

LOS ANGELES, July 3.—Democratic government in the United States has become a farce through the disfranchisement of black men, said an address to the American People adopted today by the 19th annual conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in session here.

"The disfranchisement of the majority of intelligent adult Negroes in the United States is not simply a race problem," the address read. "It is a problem of democracy and it affects the entire world."

"To keep 2,750,000 southern Negroes from voting selfish interests have been willing to keep 5,000,000 southern whites from the polls—thus America has been willing to disfranchise itself in order to disfranchise the Negro. The result makes a farce of democracy."

EXTRA SESSION OF LEGISLATURE IS PREDICTED

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—A special session of the state legislature was predicted today following a request to Gov. C. C. Young by the state tax commission that the legislators be summoned for consideration of a series of amendments dealing with taxation of banks and intangible assets.

The decision of the tax commission was announced by Irving Martin, chairman. Politicians here were of the opinion that Governor Young would call the legislature in session within 60 days.

It was pointed out that the tax commission was created by the last legislature or recommendation of the governor and it was assumed that the executive was acquainted with the move made last night as he spent Friday in conference with the commission discussing taxation questions.

Refuses to Comment

While in San Francisco the governor refused to comment on the conference and its findings, saying he would wait until the matter was formally before him.

The proposed amendments, if approved at the special session, would be placed before the voters at the November election.

The recommendation of the commission is an aftermath of a decision of the state supreme court, last March, in holding illegal the seven per cent tax law affecting the so-called intangible securities. It was estimated $5,000,000 of taxable wealth was affected by the court decision.

Intricate Problem

"Ever since the announcement of a line of federal decisions bearing upon bank taxation, California, like most states of the Union, has been seeking a solution to a most intricate problem of taxation," said the statement of the commission.

"The situation in California is somewhat more difficult than in other states because the present method of taxing national banks is a part of the constitution, thus requiring a change in the constitution to meet the situation."

According to the announcement the course recommended will be taxation of banks upon their net income and the same type levy for business and financial corporations.

Want Not Income Tax

The proposals would abolish the present franchise tax and substitute a tax on net income of the corporations with an offset amount of any personal property taxes paid by them.

As a part of the general scheme there will be a recommendation for an intangible securities tax of not over four mills. This, the statement said, would come in the form of a constitutional amendment as the present provision is deemed unworkable in view of the supreme court decision.

The plan calls for no increase in revenue, and, in the opinion of the tax commission, will result in a more equitable distribution of taxes.

Young Promises Careful Consideration Of Request

SACRAMENTO, Calif., July 3.—Governor Young today announced that he would "give careful attention" to the request of the California state tax commission for a special legislative session to consider dealing with taxes on banks and on intangibles.

In this connection, however, the governor made two declarations of administration policy for the information and guidance of the commission. They were:

That he would not consider granting the special session unless he is assured that not only the commission but also the banks and others affected by the proposed constitutional amendment "agree upon its absolute necessity."

That the state of California does not need more tax money, and in the governor's opinion "the primary purpose of our tax study is certainly not to pile up more revenues for the state or greater burden of the taxpayer."

Law Enforcement To Be Pressed By Clubs Federation

The meeting convened at 10 a. m. Reports by various club presidents on the activities of their clubs during the last year were given. Following the reports a luncheon was served in the Newport Beach Civic League clubhouse. The afternoon session was devoted to business and the program for the coming season was outlined. It was pointed out at the meeting that more than $1000 was given by women of Orange county during the last year to war veterans.

Arrangements for a number of programs stressing law enforcement will be made by Mrs. Bay G. Burlingame, county chairman of law enforcement, and Mrs. A. P. Nelson, law enforcement chairman for Southern California clubs.

Mrs. Albert Launer, of Fullerton, president of the county federation, was in charge of the meeting.

GAMBLING VESSEL OFF COUNTY COAST

Low Blodget, of the district attorney's office here is of the opinion that it is of no concern of Orange county in that the ship is more than three miles off shore and therefore out of Orange county. Orange county extends only three miles out, therefore the ship is not in this jurisdiction, he said. At the same time, he pointed out that no contact is being made with the ship from this county but from Long Beach and that action, if taken, will have to come from there.

"We will be glad to co-operate in any way that we can, however," Blodget said.

Federal officers are not inclined to raid the ship because there is no liquor aboard. Persons coming to the ship to play are searching for liquor, it is reported, and those who are requested not to come aboard or else their liquor refreshments are taken away and fed to the fish. The operators of the gambling ship are not anxious to cross with the federal prohibition officers, it seems.

Persons returning from the floating Tia Juana are unable to do justice in describing the manner in which the boat is furnished, they say. Deep thick carpets cover the floors, soft music is heard, and waiters in dinner coats dart in and out of a quiet dining room where the best of food is served. A dance hall is aboard, beautifully appointed and the gambling rooms with their furnishings would do justice to the interior of a movie star's home. Luxury reigns supreme on the "Johnna Smith."

Los Angeles officers who visited the ship yesterday were met by Captain Al Howard, who claims ownership of the boat and Ed Turner, alleged owner of the gambling concessions. They were free to announce, they said, that they did not fear the law.

GYPSIES HOLD RITES FOR DEAD ROMANY RULER

MORRISTOWN, N. J., July 3.—More than 1000 "Gypsies" from all corners of the continental United States, moving swiftly across Gypsy land, today to lay a rose on the bier of their 55-year-old chieftain.

The body of Naylor Harrison, "monarch of the open road," lies in a plain pine board in the funeral room back from which he raised the American gypsies. Expensive automobiles, horse carts and prairie schooners dot the 50 acres which Harrison bought five years ago.

In the center of the toy kingdom is a smoking mound of ashes where all the personal property of King Naylor was burned in accordance with the ancient law of Romany. Antique furniture and rare Persian rugs have gone up in smoke.

King Naylor's wife and 11 children, grouped in a circle around the candle at his head, told how their ruler built up a fortune through years of honest trading. Born in Plymouth, England, King Naylor came to America where his amazing physical strength and fairness won him a Gypsy throne.

In the midst of luxury King Naylor lived simply. The only time his subjects ever dared violate an edict was when some of them bought automobiles. The king never owned one.

The 50-year-old Queen Louise receives visitors with quiet courtesy. "His funeral probably will be held next Tuesday," she said. "We must give all members of the tribe time to arrive."

King Naylor suffered a paralytic stroke four years ago and never took to the road again. He contented himself with staying in Morristown, settling minor disputes among his subjects.

Last week King Naylor sold a piece of St. Louis real estate for $50,000.

MURPHY TELLS THREE NEGROES ABOUT D. A. V. NATIONAL MEET

A resolution instructing the Veterans Bureau to place two additional liaison officers in Southern California for the benefit of disabled veterans of the World war, was adopted at the national convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, held at Denver last week, according to information brought back here today with the return of William Murphy, state commander of the organization who represented California at the convention.

Approximately 22 per cent of all disabled veterans in this country over which the Veterans Bureau has jurisdiction are being rehabilitated or hospitalized in California, therefore the need for additional liaison men, it was reported.

Murphy, who had charge of the California delegation to the national convention, was appointed chairman of the national finance committee, which will handle $2,000,000 this next year, it was reported. The committee is one of the most important in the organization.

Murphy was high in praise of the co-operation of the American Legion, the G. A. R. and the Spanish American War veterans at the convention.

Rumor to the effect that Murphy is a prospective candidate for national commander of the organization were heard here today and it is possible, according to Jack Fisher, local chapter commander, that Murphy will make the race in Detroit next June.

POLICE CHIEF GIVES WARNING TO JOY RIDERS

Persons returning to Santa Ana from Newport Beach and Balboa, late at night, along South Main street, must return in an orderly manner or face arrest, Lt. G. Rogers, chief of police, decreed today following the receipt of numerous complaints from residents of South Main street to the effect that their sleep was being disturbed.

Joy riders returning home will have to be more quiet, Rogers said, intimating that he would assign an officer along the street to see that motorists kept the peace.

BID SPECIFICATIONS ORDERED ON SHIPS

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The U. S. shipping board today authorized the Merchant Fleet Corporation to prepare bid specifications for sale of the United States Lines and the American Merchant Lines under eight alternate propositions.

The first proposition also was directed to procure bill specifications for sale of the American President Lines, operating out of New Orleans, Miss. Sale of the President Lines would be on a basis of six or more of the cargo ships now operating on the line.

Rudy Goetz Pays Balance Of Fine

Rudy Goetz, Santa Ana service station proprietor, arrested Sunday night on a bench warrant charging failure to appear in court, paid the balance of a fine of $500 in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court yesterday afternoon and was released.

Goetz was arrested several months ago on a possession of illegal charge and at the time was fined $500. He paid $200 and was given time to bring in the remainder. The time elapsed and Goetz failed to make his appearance, so a bench warrant was issued.

Word was received in Santa Ana, today of the death of Mrs. H. Merrick in Escondido, yesterday afternoon at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Merrick was well known in Santa Ana, having lived here a number of years. She is survived by her husband and daughter, Mrs. Ira E. Lock. Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in Escondido and burial will be in Fairhaven cemetery there, at 3 o'clock the same day.

Through an error in last Sunday's edition of the Register the names of W. D. Rudd, Clyde C. Downing and Ralph A. Mosher were omitted as being directors of the Southwest Building-Loan association which was opened Monday of this week. Rudd is affiliated with the National Cash Register office of this city. Downing is a local practicing attorney. Mosher is the local distributor for General gasoline and Petroleum products.

"GHOST SHIP"
WILL OPERATE WITHOUT CREW

BERLIN, July 2.—Travelers on the North Sea may see at times a large dummy ship with masts and funnels, but not a living soul on board, prowling around those waters.

Reminiscent of the Albatross-haunted ship of the Ancient Mariner, this weird craft will be propelled by a normal ship's engine, will move slowly and then fast, according to the will of its invisible human masters, or zig-zag across the waves.

But few persons are aware that this "ghost-vessel" will represent the first experiment of the new German navy with a wireless-controlled dummy ship. The vessel itself is the former German battleship "Zehringen" with 11,800 tons displacement. The "Zehringen" has been rebuilt at a cost of more than $600,000 especially for this purpose. The German navy decided upon this experiment after similar successful tests had been undertaken by the American navy.

To Serve As Target

Ultimately, the "Zehringen" will become the target for German naval gun practice. But the initial experiments are limited to trying out the efficacy of wireless control of a moving vessel. The preliminary trial will last a month.

The naval hulk, once the stalwart "Zehringen," after pulsing out of Wilhelmshaven, without a man aboard, will be guided and completely controlled by the German naval radio station on an escorting torpedo-boat. In order to avoid a collision of the "Zehringen" with other North Sea craft, the escort will remain constantly in sight of its dummy ship, although many miles removed.

In view of the high cost of contractions of the ghost-vessel, precautions have been taken to avoid the sinking of the "Zehringen" even during the gun practice later in the year.

To Use Dummy Shells

Shells to be fired at the "Zehringen" also will be dummies. They will be non-explosive and will, at worst, tear a hole in the hull of the target-ship. But the vast empty spaces in the hull of the "Zehringen" have been stuffed with cork, solid cork, so that the ship must either be hit below the water-mark or literally torn to pieces by the non-explosive shells before it is in danger of sinking.

The solid cork sink-proof scheme was decided upon as being more effective than the use of empty beer-barrels, used by the German navy during the war to keep mine-seekers afloat.

The engine of the "Zehringen" has been transmuted to an oil-fueling system and the machinery has been so adjusted that the dummy ship can run along for many hours at a rapid, even pace.

Sailors on the North Sea, spying the "Zehringen" and probably not perceiving the slim little escorting torpedo-boat, are likely to be agitated at this speeding, gigantic spectre.

WOMAN IS GUILTY OF LIQUOR COUNT

Mrs. Helen M. Annin, resident of near Fullerton, was given suspended sentence in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court yesterday afternoon when she was tried for possession of liquor.

Officers arrested the woman several days ago when a small amount of liquor was found in her home. Morrison said that an investigation of the case proved that Mrs. Annin was not wholly to blame for the liquor being in the house and that another woman had brought it there.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 3.—Paul Clagstone, manager of the western division of the United States Chamber of Commerce, spoke at the noon meeting of the local chamber Monday. He reviewed the work of the national organization and the U. S. department of Commerce in forwarding standardized articles of production which has meant an annual saving of $600,000 to the nation and their more recent surveys of distribution in several larger cities including San Francisco.

Clagstone spoke of the fact that the foreign trade of the U. S. with Japan is greater today than is that with France and that trade with China has increased 15 percent last year.

Edward Brenner presented the subject of the increasing number of ball games at triangle park in the evening and its relation to business downtown. He stated that there are 21 business houses open in the evening and that the ball grounds being at the entrance to the city attracts most of those who might come down to the business section. Jack Robertson expressed the view that some plan might be adopted that would be mutually agreeable to all concerned. Dr. Shank favored the ball games and considered them an asset to the city. Willis Warner stated that the subject might well come before the Business Men's association.

PLAY GROUNDS

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 3.—The city council last night authorized the elementary school board to employ a trained playground supervisor for the summer months. Supervised play on the elementary school grounds where every facility has been provided will be a very important activity to the children of the community, it was pointed out.

A communication from the field engineer of the Automobile Club of Southern California recommended that Ocean avenue be marked its entire length as a boulevard stop.

Signals for installation at Ocean and Main streets are being considered. The matter was referred to the police and fire commission.

The smoke abatement ordinance was read for the last time and is now in effect.

The council members accepted the invitation of the American Legion and will march at the head of the parade the morning of the Fourth.

The city council granted Mrs. Sam Clapp a permit to operate the Southland dining room at 406 Ocean avenue. This is one of the most important business developments in Huntington Beach in recent months.

The council was told Obarr hall will be operated in connection with the dining room.

Mayor Bowen announced that the license ordinance is in process of revision and that written communications from business men who have proposals to make in regard to these matters are decided by the council at this time.

The municipal band will be sent to the Orange County fair if the cost does not exceed that for regular concerts already arranged.

LOS ANGELES, July 3.—Superior Judge Edmonds was expected to hand down a decision today on the request of Albert Marco, vice leader, to replace his $100,000 cash bail with surety bonds.

According to the accusation against Marco, he wounded James Contero and Harry Hart during the course of a fight on the ship Calypso, in Venice, last Wednesday morning.

Marco is under two indictments charging assault with intent to commit murder. Trial on the charge has been set for July 10 and he will be given a hearing on the second Thursday. His counts probably will be considered it was said.

Two Are Hurt As Auto Hits Freight Train

Two men were slightly injured when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a Santa Fe freight train shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Irvine crossing.

E. F. Adams, 50, Oak Knoll Gardens, Pasadena, suffered a bruised shoulder and W. S. Adams, 47, 873 North Hill street, Pasadena, was slightly cut and bruised.

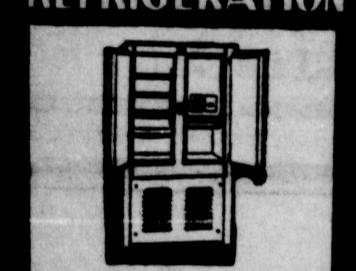

The automobile in which the men were riding was completely destroyed and officers who viewed the wreckage were amazed, they said, that the men escaped with only slight injuries. The wheels of the car were taken off, the doors were torn off the body and the car carried 30 feet down the tracks.

Adams reported that he saw the train but was unable to stop his car in time to avoid a collision. Both men were taken to the Orange county hospital where their injuries were given medical attention after which they went to their homes.

NASHWAUK, Minn., July 3.—Mr. and Mrs. C. W. French, chicken farmers living near here, are believed to have established an endurance record for camping.

They have lived in a tent, equipped with modern conveniences for the past 12 years. During that time they have worn out three tents.

They plan to construct a log cabin soon.

JOCKEYS USE WHIPS ON EACH OTHER IN RACE

SIENA, Italy, July 3.—Great crowds, including many Americans, who came over specially from Florence and Rome for the event, witnessed today the annual July "palio," or horse-race on mediaeval lines, run in the piazza or public square of Siena.

The tradition of the "palio" is very old, and the race has been run every year since the end of the 14th century, save for an occasional suspension in times of war or disaster.

Old time race-goers evidently liked a full program, for the "palio," even as run to-day, was considerably more than an ordinary horserace. The jockeys, dressed in fantastic costumes of mediaeval Siena, but only try to keep their mounts ahead as they career wildly around the piazza, but engaged in whip and stick fights with other jockeys. Bumping, charging and hitting a rival horse on the nose appear to be all allowed in the sport, to which the public react enthusiastically.

The race is introduced with a procession of the competing horses round the square, gay with flags of ancient Siena and the Italian tricolor of today.

Beside each horse walk a page and a guard of honor, with antique halberds and gleaming breast-plates. In the front of the procession the standard of Siena is carried by a youth in 14th century dress.

The race is between the various quarters of the city, which are curiously named after animals, as the "snail," "the viper" and "the tortoise."

When the horses are lined up for the start, the jockeys fix on their steel helmets and grip their heavy riding crops for the grim work of the race.

As they get off amid roars of cheering, the blows begin to fall thick and fast. In the "palio" it is not sufficient for a jockey to push his horse along, he must deliver and parry blows, look out for charges and execute them when he gets a chance.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Lindsey spent a few days this week at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Cole, South Orange street.

Miss Esther and Miss Ella Klausmeyer were the guests of Los Angeles relatives over the week end.

Mrs. George Beckman is seriously ill at her home at 230 North Center street, following an operation which she underwent the latter part of the week.

MILWAUKEE, July 3.—Art applied to a police boathouse will cost Milwaukee taxpayers $1,000 this year.

The police department has a launch, Killjoy, which is used to patrol the upper Milwaukee River and provide shade for chaperones for couples in canoes and along the banks of the stream.

There must be a house in which to keep it. A plain structure, to cost $1,200, was planned.

But Milwaukee has an art commission to pass on designs for all structures erected by the city. The commission disapproved of the plain plans.

Artistic changes in the design of the boathouse will increase its cost to $1,400.

SEAL BEACH, July 3.—A ten-pound halibut and a three-pound halibut were landed by Mrs. L. C. Smith of East Seal Beach last week.

In the early days, Willapa oysters were carted by the shipload to San Francisco. No provision was made in those carefree days for replenishing the beds, and, in consequence, the supply was eventually exhausted.

Now plans are being made for the establishment of an oyster hatchery here and it is expected that the Willapa oyster, a great delicacy 60 years ago, will be as popular with modern epicures.

"Well then, let him tell her!"
Bertie Lou groaned. "Shades of

"You can tell him so, can't you?"
"Wives aren't trusts any more.
Mama. We don't want to succeed by stampeding our opposition. I'll do everything I can to make Rod love

Lila."

Mrs. Ward looked worried. "Yes, but honey, you know he must have cared a great deal for her at one time. I can't believe that she won't have some attraction for him still if she cares to start it. Lila is very pretty in her way, and I've noticed that it's a way the boys seem to Bertie Lou unpinched her hair talking and have people asking each other how they think I like being second choice."

The last words came slowly, re luctantly, as though she hated the sound of them. Her mother regard ed her silently for a moment and then got up to go.

"There's a steak and some cleaned vegetables in the icebox for your supper if you feel like cooking it," she said. "But I think maybe you'd better come home with me. You look awfully tired, Bertie Lou."

"Don't worry about us. We're the happiest couple in the world. Lila is the most wonderful girl in the world. She doesn't give a hang what anyone says."

"Well, I never thought you cared so much either, Bertie Lou. You always were pretty up-to-date."

"Oh, about bobo and short skirts and cigarettes. But I don't like making a town topic out of my marriage, like the latest murder mystery or love nest scandal."

"It can't be that bad," her mother soothed. "But I wish you'd find a way to drop Lila. It can't do any good to let her come right into your bed and torment you. She . . ."

Mrs. Ward stopped abruptly, her speech interrupted by the ringing of the door bell.

Four Hurt When Machines Crash

NEXTOR BEACH, July 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Dee Wolfe, of San Clemente, former residents of this city, narrowly escaped serious injury Sunday night, when their machine collided with a car driven by P. C. Gilliland, of 220 South Wilton street, Los Angeles. The accident occurred on the coast highway near Coast Royal.

Both machines were badly damaged. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe were bruised and shaken up in the crash and Mr. and Mrs. Gilliland also were badly bruised, according to reports. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe were returning to San Clemente after spending the evening in Balboa. Mr. and Mrs. Gilliland were traveling toward Los Angeles. According to reports, the Gilliland car swung wide on a curve and struck the Wolfe machine.

Bertie Lou vanished and a worried young face appeared in the glass before which she brushed out her heavy, half-grown bob.

"Don't look such a 'fraid-cat,' she adjusted the reflection. "Rod isn't a mouse for two cats to fight over.
And he wouldn't marry a girl unless he loved her. The dear boy doesn't know it, but he's romantic to the very darling heart of him. Marriage had to be for him what it is to me —love for two."

She felt better after that and hurriedly pinned her hair into a tight knot so she could bathe her face and neck in cold water. Her mother came into the bedroom while she was in the adjoining bath.

"Bertie Lou, I'm going home now," Mrs. Ward called. "But there's something I want to say to you first."

"All right, Mama. I'll be out in a minute. Soon I'll get a yard or two of railroad right-of-way off my neck."

Mrs. Ward stepped back to the bedroom door and closed it. She had a feeling that Rod might think she was intruding, but she couldn't go before she had spoken to Bertie Lou.

Bertie Lou had come out of the bathroom, most of her visible be yond the soft shape of an orchid silken brevity set. She unstrapped one of the suites and dug out a silken coat of embroidered pongee and threw it around her shoulders.

"What's the 'quick Watson' stuff, Mama?" she teased, climbing to her round comforter on the chintz covered bed.

Her mother looked at her with troubled eyes before she took a seat on a chair, refusing Bertie Lou's hand-maneuvered invitation to sit on the bed. "Spoil a mattress to sit on the edge of it," she said as she had said many times before to Bertie Lou. "You must take care of your pretty things, honey."

Bertie Lou's eyes sobered. "I'm afraid I'll be a bum housekeeper, Mama. But if I make Rod happy
. . ."

"I know that Lila worries me, especially," Bertie Lou returned an hour later. "She was perfect under normal conditions, but that night they were closer than ever before. And I'm afraid for Bertie Lou. She's laughing at life as she's never known it before. One can't help but laugh, until there is something very dear to lose."

"I know what she would. You can't help but laugh, until there is something very dear to lose."

GROWTH OF ORANGE COUNTY FAIR IS EVIDENCED IN REPORT MADE BY SECRETARY-MANAGER

As evidence of the growth of the Orange County Fair during recent years, J. R. Hunt, secretary-manager of the fair association sends out some interesting data concerning the 1928 show to be held September 3 to 8 inclusive.

"Last year experienced the greatest

Orange County Fair, in attendance and exhibits, states Hunt and this season we have had to arrange for a far greater exposition. Our tent contract calls for a 30 per cent increase and the square footage under top this season approaches very closely to the 200,000 mark. One of the greatest tents ever erected in the state will be on the grounds this fall. It will be 100 feet in width and 1800 feet in length. Aside from its big tent there will be tops 90 feet in width and approximately another 1000 feet in length.

"In the tent first referred to will be the agricultural, industrial, automobile, women's exhibits and the junior fair exhibits. In the 80 foot tents will be the machinery, poultry, rabbits, pigeons, dogs, horses and cattle. During the past three seasons the amount of canvas used to house the exhibits has practically doubled, the attendance and exhibits have followed closely until today we can safely say that we have twice the show we had a few years ago. Year-around concentration on the affairs of the show and a permanent location on the highway for the exhibition are the two greatest factors in the building of the fair.

"The entertainment this fall at the fair, according to H. W. Miller, director in charge of this particular feature of the fair, will be more attractive than ever and the added feature of the night rodeo is already causing no end of favorable comment. This night feature is being produced at considerable additional cost to the association and incorporates a wonderful spectacular pageant in connection with the regular rodeo features of steer riding, wild horse riding and bronco busting.

"Another added feature of the fair this fall is the junior division which has existed in a more or less indifferent fashion in the past. Ted Craig, director of this department has incorporated the school department, the agricultural clubs and the boy scouts under a big top and is striving to give the older exhibitors something to shoot at in the way of exhibits. The boy scouts will have some fifty different phases of their work exhibited in separate and artistically arranged booths, the school department will utilize some 2000 square feet of space in their department while the agricultural club will occupy a like amount on the opposite side of the structure.

"All the way through the exposition Orange County patrons of the show will find vastly improved methods of decoration and lighting effects. The garden beautiful motif, which is being carried out by the Orange County Nurserymen's association gives a wide and varied field for the imaginative brain of the director and some wonderful ideas are being worked out which it is safe to say will cause no end of comment. More attention is being given to the finer details of the lighting and the entire grounds will be illuminated in brilliant colored effects to give the true gay atmosphere to the exposition."

Lou. I think you'd better tell her the first chance you get that you think it best not to visit each other."

Bertie Lou emitted a sharp, dry laugh. "Mama, you'd fight the best war with Civil War weapons if they made you chief of staff," she said. "Don't you know that I can't forbid the house to anyone who comes to see Rod? In the new order the house is his as well as mine."

"Well then, let him tell her!"

Bertie Lou groaned. "Shades of Queen Victoria! Can you picture Rod doing that?"

"Wives aren't trusts any more. Mama. We don't want to succeed by stamping out opposition. I'll do everything I can to make Rod love me—but nothing to make him hate Lila."

Mrs. Ward looked worried. "Yes, but honey, you know he must have cared a great deal for her at one time. I can't believe that she won't have some attraction for him still if she cares to start it. Lila is very pretty in her way, and I've noticed that it's a way the boys seem to admire."

Bertie Lou unpinched her hair and went over to the dresser to do it properly. "Rod says I'm the prettiest girl in the world," she said during the process. "I'm not afraid of Lila taking him away from me. But it makes me mad to have her trying to cook up a triangle out of her love affair with Rod and our marriage. I don't mean a regular triangle, but a silly three-cornered mess that will just keep the town talking and have people asking each other how they think I like being second choice."

The last words came slowly, reluctantly, as though she hated the sound of them. Her mother regarded her silently for a moment and then got up to go.

Germany's Strangest Girl

Blond Claerenore Stinnes, The Heiress of 22 Who Defied Her Family To Motor Round the World Without a Chaperone, Has Become the Ideal Of the Teutonic New Woman That Seeks a Virgin Eden

Fraulein Stinnes . . . is famed as an aviatrix, automobile racer, tennis player, swimmer.

A LITTLE more than a year ago Claerenore Stinnes, 22-year-old daughter of the late Hugo Stinnes, one-time richest man in the world, set forth to circle the globe at the wheel of her automobile in one of the most unusual ventures ever attempted by a woman.

Millions of German women applauded her courage and originality, but her own family strenuously objected to her going, particularly because she was taking no woman with her, but five men—four mechanics and a photographer.

August Teutons, already alarmed at the determined manner in which German womanhood was breaking the shackles of centuries of masculine domination, curled disdainful lips and warned their blond-headed daughters to pick up no preposterous ideas from "Germany's strangest girl," who so vigorously despises the cloistered life.

Corpulent old hausfrau imbued with the iron-clad ideals of the Hohenzollern regime, recalled in words long and vehement that no lady would envy or imitate a girl who burns up the road in high-powered automobiles, roars through the skies in her own airplane, foregoes the tranquil hymenial state to go gallivanting around the world.

All the same, the august males and the puffy hausfrau had to admit that Fraulein Stinnes is a maid of spirit and mettle.

She demonstrated this when, after leaving Berlin May 25, 1927, and driving to Moscow by way of Constantinople, one of her mechanics fell ill. As she could not find the proper medical treatment for him in Moscow, she hired an airplane, and herself flew him to a Berlin hospital, got another mechanic, flew him back to Moscow, and continued across Russia towards China.

Then came a second proof of her boldness. When she arrived at Irkutsk, Siberia, last October, all of her four mechanics, dismayed by the heavy snows and the prospect of freezing to death while crossing the Great Gobi desert, left her flat.

She didn't say: "Cowards!" She merely said, "Well, if you are afraid, go back home." She paid them, bought tickets for them on the trans-Siberian railway, and let them go home, and herself continued.

Miss Stinnes arrived in Honolulu from the Orient May 25, took ship for San Francisco and, on landing in the United States, proceeded to South America by way of Panama.

HER trip has a peculiar significance. It is more than the vagary of an energetic young woman known to the public because of her father, the late Hugo Stinnes, one of the most extraordinary figures in the history of European industry and finance.

While she has interpreted her trip in a casual way as just a desire to do something unusual and have a lot of fun about it, her spectacular journey is symbolic of the awakening of the great sisterhood of women to power throughout the world.

In particular, it is the soul adventure of the new spirit of the awakened German woman. German women have been asleep for centuries. Circumstances have made applicable to them the Arab proverb: "He who knows and knows not that he knows, is asleep. Awaken him."

Something is happening to the German girl's soul. The old German Eden where man was dominionist has been disrupted. There is a civil war of the sexes impending. The women are seeking to create a new Eden, an idealistic one, a Virgin Eden as elusive as the Golden Fleece of mythology. This purpose and trend is foreshadowed in the actions of Miss Stinnes as well as in the teachings of Mary Wigman, Germany's dancer-prophetess-witch.

This something so new on the German woman's horizon goes far deeper in its philosophic aspects than the woman movement in either England or America, because these German women are intense and spiritual in their searchings beyond the women of any people. The observing world has not yet perceived clearly these mighty forces at play in Germany.

In outlining this phenomenon, as exemplified in young Miss Stinnes, whose full first name of Claerenore itself spells romanticism, it is first necessary to present the picture of this girl in the making.

No other girl in the world has had just her especial background, just as no other girls have had contributed to their mental make-up the influences and experiences of Germany's tragic days of war and readjustment.

There are involved in the background of Miss Stinnes three unusually interesting factors. One of these is that she had a strange and brilliant father who, at the time of his death in April, 1924, was regarded as the world's richest man.

Another factor, common to this remarkable new generation of German girls, is that she was just eight years old when the World War started. The third factor has been her reaction to that war and to her unique position since it ended.

TO trace her career, which already is becoming as dramatic in her youth as was her father's at middle age, it is necessary and now possible for the first time to give the facts of the fall of the House of Stinnes and the part she played in it.

For family reasons, as well as ones involving world finance, the true story of the gigantic ruin of this house, beside which that of the Fall of the House of Usbek was small indeed, has so far not been revealed. In this fall her character stands out like a house built on a rock.

Insight into Miss Stinnes' character is provided by facts as to her origin. Her mother, who died three years ago, was Adeline Coupicane Wagenknecht, of Argentina.

Her father came of the French Huguenot stock which fled to Germany during the religious wars and the French revolution, as did General Hitler who commanded in the great Ludendorff Drive of 1918 against the Allies.

The exceptional mental outlook of her father was illustrated by his wishes regarding his funeral. As his father and his grandfather had been in the coal business, with headquarters at Mulheim-am-Rhein, he stated that he wanted coal miners to carry his body to the grave, their cap lights burning, and singing their song of joy: Rhine maidens with Rhine wine is Heaven on earth!

Although a man far more absorbed in business than Billionaire Henry Ford, almost sombre in his make-up, at the last he wanted to express his feeling that he had missed the joy of life. This wish was carried out to the letter. But other wishes of this unusual old Huguenot were disregarded. Dying at the age of 54, at a period when his word was law to 500 companies and a million workmen, when he was variously called the Mephistopheles of Germany, its uncrowned Kaiser, the King of the Ruhr, its industrial Bismarck, dead his word had no force, not even within his family. He warned his seven children, especially Edmund, the eldest and Hugo, the second son, to stick together, and to sell off his vast holdings. He explained to them that he had grown rich during the war by monopoly in coal, then by buying up, when money was cheap, railways, ships, hotels, newspapers and factories, all operated on a low scale of wages, and that with a dearer money it was time to sell and take profits.

HE also left a secret codicil to his will by which Hugo was to have the deciding voice over Edmund, or any others.

Almost when he was ready for the second operation that resulted in his death, Edmund learned of this codicil and wanted to beg his father to cancel it. His mother prevented him, saying the worry might kill his father.

So soon as that joyful song had been sung over the rich man, his body put away, there was a rush of the financial wolves to pull down the House of Stinnes. The bankers were foremost in the attack, because, like Henry Ford, Stinnes has ceased to deal with them and built up his own bank.

The first onslaught failed, because Edmund and Hugo stood together. Then, when Edmund demanded that the selling of the huge properties begin, as his father had advised, Hugo opposed him. He pointed out that Edmund was a mere cavalry officer and aviator while he, Hugo, had been with his father all during the war and knew his purposes.

Claerenore sided with Edmund. They are both of the same idealistic cast, and also have inherited the vision of their father.

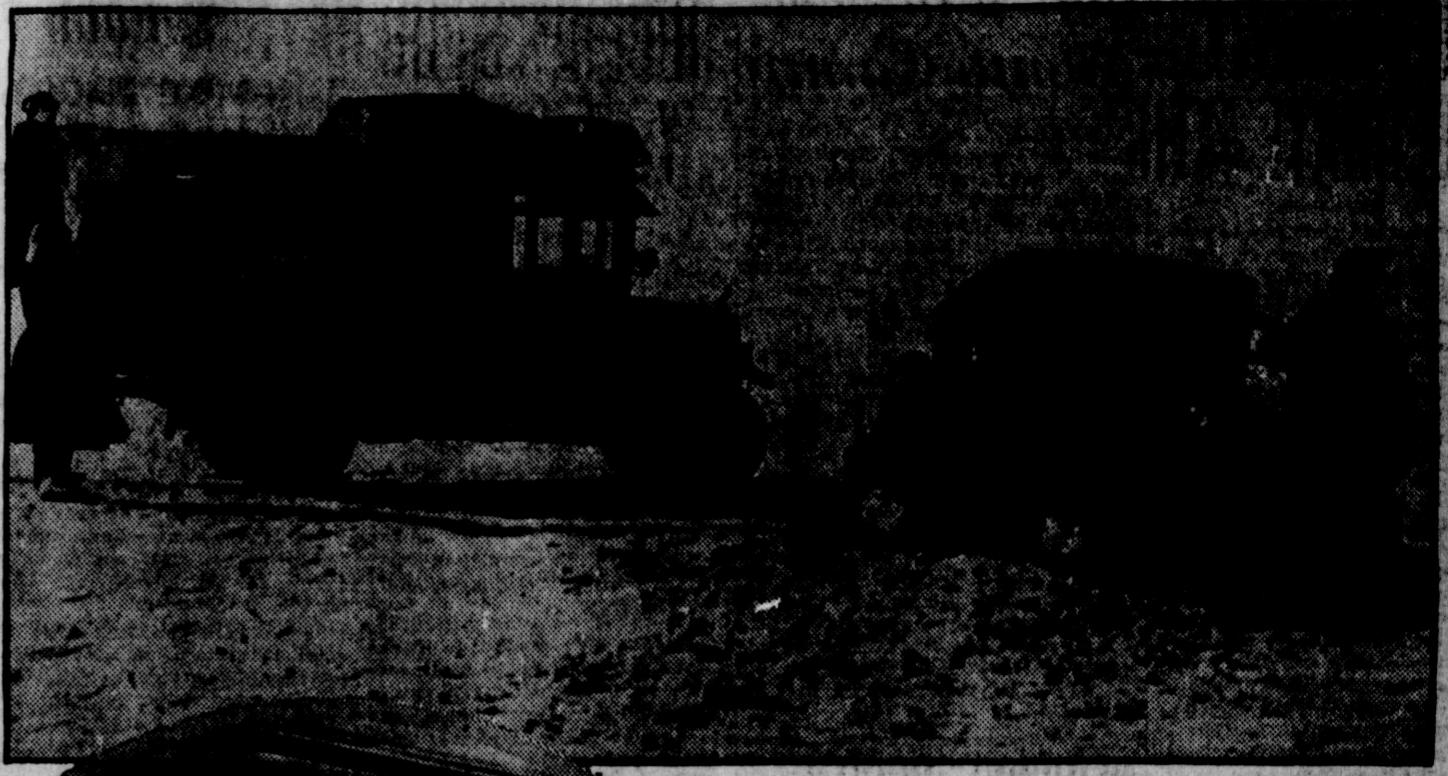

The family quarrel that followed has since become public property. It resulted in the ruin of the house. The second onslaught of the financial wolves was successful. Edmund demanded his share of the property, was supported by Claerenore, and in the liquidation that followed they withdrew with a few million dollars each, while Hugo held on as best he could, stayed in the family coal business, and organized a holding company that still operates in the United States.

Claerenore and Edmund joined interests in minor ventures, one of which was the manufacture of roadside automobiles. The venture did not succeed, partly due to the ruthless machinations of the bankers, intent on wrecking the Stinnes interests.

It was during this period, however, that "Germany's strangest girl" came to the front as a fast motorist. She had during the war years become an ardent sportswoman, remarkable for her skill in skating, boating, swimming, tennis, flying. To excel in motoring was child's play for her.

While, two years ago, Edmund's automobile was still on the market, she participated with one of the cars in a motor race from Berlin via Moscow to Tiflis, in South Russia, and triumphed over more than a hundred men competitors.

(Copyright, 1928, N.Y. Magazine)

During the long, cold trek across Siberia . . . World-girdler Stinnes found the going rough, was frequently called upon to get out and dig.

GERMANY has never known another such girl as Claerenore Stinnes. Indeed, the wide world would have to be combed to find so startling an exponent and example of the new sex freedom expressing itself in deeds. She is wilful, charming, original and courageous.

Regarded as a freak by German men, adored as one of their leaders by those young women who have created Germany's Youth Movement on the ashes of old sex slavery, she is as much a seeker after intellectual truth and physical discovery as were Raleigh, Drake, and hundreds of others in that morning of life when America was discovered. She is determined to find out what lies beyond the frontiers.

She is not known to have had a love affair. The only man she truly loves and trusts is her brother Edmund, who supports her in all she does. Unlike the rest of her family, he is not ashamed of her pioneering. She does not live with Edmund, but has her own four-room apartment in Berlin, like many of her free sisters of this new commonwealth. Her letters home about her trip have been laconic and impersonal, mostly about her motor.

She is far more whimsical, daring and strange than her younger sister, Hilda, who two years ago made a trip alone to Guatemala and returned to New York, homeward bound, leading a vicious cougar by a string.

Claerenore, as an exponent of the new outlook of Germany's girls, is not a man-hater. These girls are merely seeking a new adjustment of a more spiritual nature in their relations with men.

Not for them is the free-flowing song of Italy, the lilting love of a lascivious Casanova where the woman pays in the end, passively or actively. Not for them is the eighteenth century gallantry of France, the fatal philandering which lead to a dark road, if the woman is not wise.

After centuries of submission to an ego-centric man, the German woman has discovered Love, but she won't give it a man's definition. She has rejected the call-love pictured in the Sorrows of Werther, and finds one-sided the definition of Leibnitz, "Love is to rejoice in the happiness of another."

These girls, such as Clara Stinnes, whom the World War starved, repudiated, made joyless and whose end cast into their laps the ripe apple of sex freedom, are taking a proud place in history, are voting and forcing the political pace as members of state and national governmental bodies.

THEY look at life freely and frankly, and assert their right to equality with men in every respect, and reject the double standard of morals. They consider it dishonorable to be sold-slaves. They no longer expect to be supported by others until they can steal a husband, and when they marry, if they do, they will shoulder their share of the burden and no more.

When Clara Stinnes, who has announced Washington, D. C., as her objective, reaches there, it will be with the usual background and the avowed reason of her visit the study of the feminist movement in the United States, which has had its action on the German women.

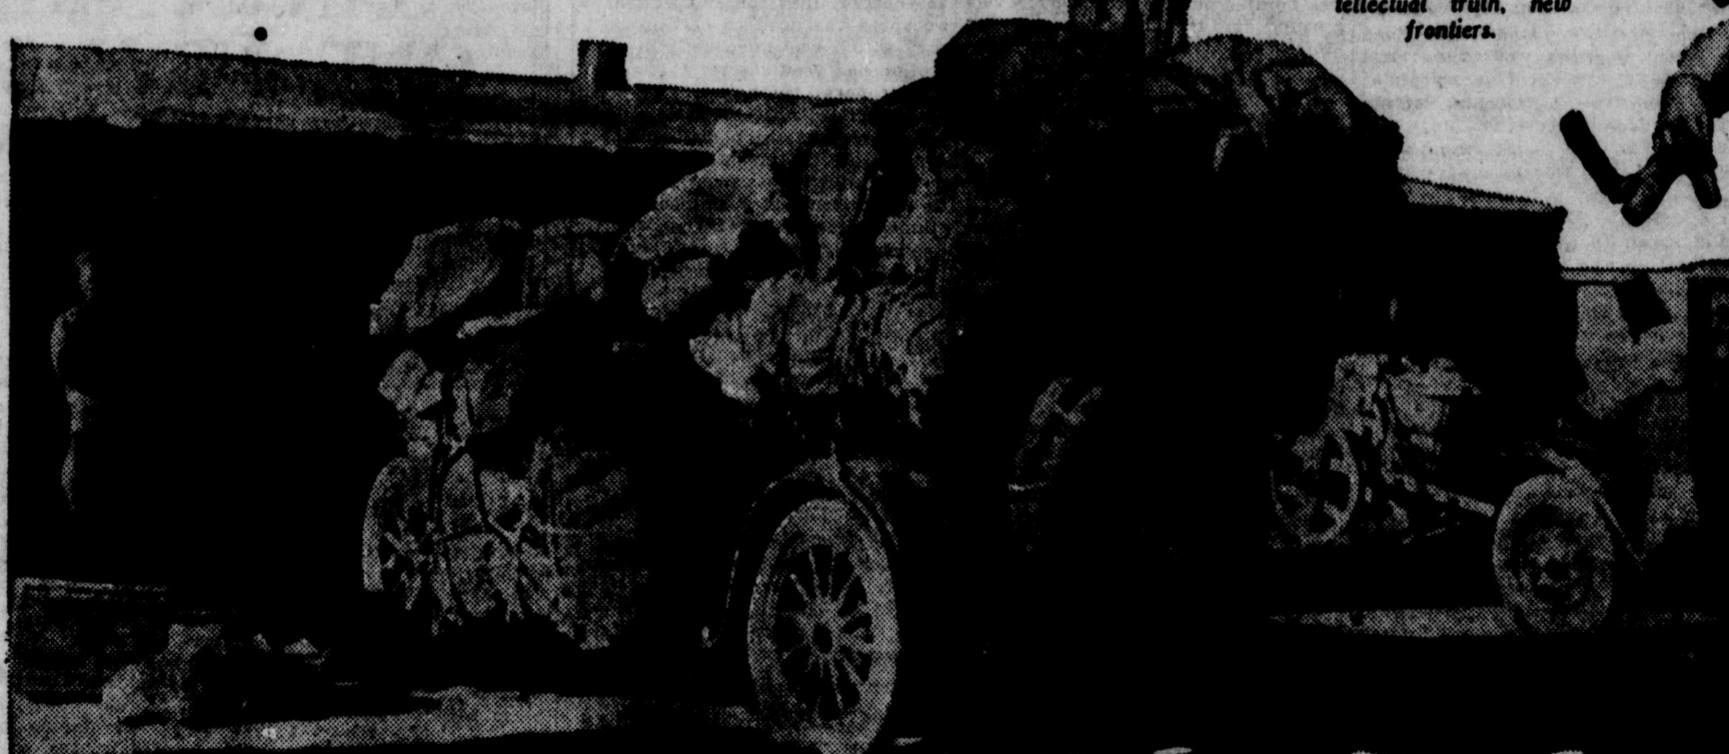

Her guide in the United States will be Colonel Edwin Emerson, who knew her father and who visited her brother Edmund on his trip two years ago, when he stayed at the Alvarado Hotel ranch in New Mexico, just before his divorce from a Mexican actress.

But previous to her visit here, there will be one of her journeys through South and Central America. Colonel Emerson is arranging this trip and will accompany her from Peru southward to Chile; then across the Andes to Argentina, where she will meet her uncle, Edmund Wagenknecht.

Then, accompanied by Colonel Emerson and the famous photographer, C. A. Sandstrom, she will cross the Amazon jungle and the Andes to the Amazon country northward.

Claerenore Stinnes . . . loves no man except her brother, seeks intellectual truth, new frontiers.

MASONIC HOME CHILDREN WILL CELEBRATE 4TH

County Boys Off For Del Monte Camp

ANAHEIM, July 3.—Children at the Masonic summer home on Balboa will celebrate July 4, the 110 children at the summer camp having received more than half a ton of fireworks from the Los Angeles police and fire departments. The fireworks were confiscated goods seized by the police from dealers who had no licenses and for other causes.

A truck loaded with fireworks arrived at the camp yesterday afternoon. Special provision has been made to find them along the bay front near the summer camp and on the camp grounds.

The children arrived at the summer camp here June 28 and during the past week have placed the buildings and grounds in spotless condition. A student body government system has been worked out at the camp. The children elected their own officers and care for the grounds and discipline.

Miss Mildred Shellepper, a graduate of the Covina high school this year, was chosen president of the camp for the summer. Jack Green was elected vice president and Colin Allen, secretary. Committees to care for the grounds, boats, buildings and other details of the camp are appointed by the president and report to the president on their work.

The camp will be maintained until about September 1, when the children will return to the Masonic home near Covina. The home here is maintained by the grand lodge of California.

FISH HOOK IN HAND
NEWPORT BEACH, July 3.—E. F. Hurst, of Brea, received medical attention at the Newport Beach hospital yesterday after he had run a fish hook into his right hand. He was fishing on the Newport Beach pier.

Mrs. Joseph Marshall and mother, Mrs. L. Leonard, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Bradley, enjoyed a day's outing at University City recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenlee, of Spokane, Washington, are spending 10 days with Mr. Greenlee's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. Harris.

Mrs. R. M. Robertson has departed for home in Los Angeles after spending several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Christensen.

Norman Christensen is improving after a long illness and is now home from the San Diego base hospital.

Mrs. Norman M. Jones and children, of South Pasadena, and Mrs. Charles Grahn, of Orange, visited Mrs. H. Robinson and Laurie Jones yesterday.

Will Rockerfellow has returned home from Imperial valley where he was on business for the past week.

Mrs. J. L. Hill and baby, Viola, spent the day with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Jones, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal V. Mueller motored to Los Angeles on a business trip last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian and Mrs. Viola Newell are spending their vacation at the Mountain resorts.

LAGUNA

LAGUNA BEACH, July 3.—Installation of officers of the Laguna Beach Lions club was a gala affair last night, with a dinner dance and ladies' night making it one of the most enjoyable affairs the local den has given.

The supper was given at Simmon's cafe, but the dance was at the San Clemente club house.

Al Burns took the oath of office as president of the club; R. D. Lippincott, Al Hayward and Stewart Avis were made first, second and third vice presidents respectively; Roy Walden was again made secretary and Charles Foster assumed his duties as treasurer.

George E. Thompson, outgoing president, became Lion tamer as well as trustee for a two-year term, and Ed S. Couse became tall twister; W. T. Lambert and Dr. M. M. Mason became directors for the two-year term.

The Lions obtained their charter January 11 and this is the first installation of officers in the organization since it was formed.

ANAHEIM P. O. RECEIPTS FOR YEAR IN GAIN

NEWPORT BEACH BOARD SETS CITY BUDGET AT $221,300; $20,000 FOR HARBOR WORK

NEWPORT BEACH, July 3.—A special harbor development fund was created in the city budget for the coming year by the city council at its regular meeting last night. The harbor development fund will contain $20,000 this year. It was added to the regular city budget at the last moment and brought the total of city expenditures planned during the coming year to $221,300.

A saving of approximately $11,000 was made by the city council in the current expense fund this year over the same fund last year. The current expense fund this year will contain $159,445. Last year a total of approximately $149,000 was budgeted, according to reports. Other funds budgeted for the coming year were $43,210, water maintenance; $2150, library; $2200, municipal auto camp; $12,976, advertising; $20,000 harbor development.

Though the increase shown is quite substantial and indicative of the steady expansion being experienced by the city, it is considerably less than the increase shown during the 1926-27 fiscal period as compared with the 1925-26 period, Postmaster Whitaker pointed out. During the 1926-27 period, an increase of $318,94 was shown over the previous fiscal year. The comparative slump was due, largely, to an unusual decrease in business during the months of May and June this year, he said.

While the month of April, this year, gave receipts totaling $4601.24, May slumped to $378.25 and the month of June just closed to $349.20.

Power Officials, C. C. Committee To Discuss Problem

FULLERTON, July 3.—In an effort to solve the problem raised by the heavy opposition to the passage of high voltage lines of the Southern Sierra Power company, officials of the corporation will meet with a committee of the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce July 10 at 2:30 p. m. in the chamber offices, it was announced today.

The new Scouts are David Phoenix and Jerry Grassmore. Both boys formerly were members of the cub troop of the local organization. One new cub was admitted at the meeting, Bobby Wiener.

Several local Scouts have left for the summer, according to Scoutmaster Twist. Donald Ensign is in the northern part of the state with his parents. Orville Hemstreet and Jack Summers are working and Dale Blue will leave soon on a vacation trip.

The local Scouts will be on duty here July 4, assisting in patrolling the beach. The Scouts are preparing to participate in the Tournament of Lights and are also making preparations to enter an exhibit in the Orange county fair this year.

29 Births And 21 Deaths At Beach For Fiscal Year

NEWPORT BEACH, July 3.—There were 29 births and 21 deaths in the city of Newport Beach during the fiscal year ending July 1. It was reported to the city council last night by the city recorder of vital statistics. The report was the first of its kind ever presented to a city council here, according to Alfred Smith, city clerk.

The report showed that 16 boys and 13 girls were born in the city.

Five persons were drowned in the city during the 12 months period and four persons were killed in traffic accidents in the city.

PERMITS FOR ANAHEIM SHOW $16,445 GAIN

ANAHEIM, July 3.—Anaheim building permits during the month of June just closed showed a gain of $16,445 over the same month last year, aggregating $45,830 as compared with $29,435 last year. Building Inspector R. Nyboe revealed this morning.

Balboa section. Burge desires to land his new boat, the Valencia, at the landing and proposes to pay for the extension to the landing and to erect pilings buttresses to land his boat, he explained. The matter was placed in the hands of a committee composed of Frank Smith and William Tuftse, property owners on either side of the pier. Dr. Herman Hilmer, city councilman; Roland Thompson, city attorney, and R. L. Patterson, city engineer.

An invitation was extended by the city council to attend a convention at San Francisco July 18, when a uniform traffic ordinance will be discussed. As the city has already adopted the uniform ordinance the communication was filed.

A three-year lease on the bait concession on the Balboa pier was requested by John Law. Law asked that he be given the concession for a consideration of $5 per year. He also stipulated in his request that he would serve as wharf tender.

George C. Hiner, who has a lease on the bait concession at the Newport pier, asked that his lease be renewed. The lease expires in September and Hiner desires to place an expensive pipe line on the pier so that he may wash it off, it was reported. Assurance was given him that the lease would be renewed.

J. T. Cox desires to keep people of Newport Beach happy by having them ride bicycles. His application for a city license as a health trainer on bicycles was granted by the council, subject to the approval of the police committee and the chief of police.

A resolution acknowledging the ownership of the Pacific Electric company to its right-of-way in Balboa was ordered drawn by the city council. The Pacific Electric company recently asked the city to proceed with improvements on the paving of the street or to replace the curbing along the tracks. The city informed the company that it was acting in good faith and that the delay was being caused only because it was desired to keep the street open during the summer season. This city also included in the agreement an arrangement to place the street in its former condition if the improvement work is not done. Bonds for the work were voted here some time ago. The work will cost $36,000.

City Attorney Roland Thompson called the attention of the council to the fact that the city had never accepted the deed to certain property which was purchased in 1922. Action has been started to condemn the property when an agreement was reached and the city purchased the land, it was reported by Thompson. He declared that the city was now faced with its own condemnation action on the property. The council accepted the deed to the property and authorized Thompson to dismiss the condemnation proceedings.

H. L. Sherman appeared before the council in behalf of the chamber of commerce to ask that steps be taken to keep the Deraga weather observatory and meteorological station here. He pointed out that the station was supplying reports to navy officials in Los Angeles, San Pedro and San Diego and that the statistics were valuable to the harbor district. He also stated that the station had received several attractive offers to move to another city. Paul Ellsworth, city councilman, was appointed to investigate the matter.

A request for more playground equipment along the beach was made by A. J. Lenox. Lenox, in his communication, reported that he had noticed many children waiting in line to use the equipment now on the beach. The matter was referred to the street committee.

Permission was asked of the city by E. D. Burge, to extend the Washington street pier in the home of the bride's parents.

LA HABRA, July 3.—Mrs. Emma Taylor left Monday morning for her home in Santa Clara after spending two weeks with her brothers, H. A. and Will Randall.

Miss Betty Boynton entertained a dozen members of the East Whittier C. E. with a social at her home in La Habra Heights Friday evening.

Observing the approaching marriage of her son, John Ackers, to Miss Dorothy Hunt, of Olinda, Mrs. John Ackers entertained at her ranch home Saturday evening with a kitchen shower. Guests were Earl and Mary Calvert of Pasadena; Josephine and Lee White, Bradford Thompson, Stewart and Edith Hudspeth, Grace Janeway, of Yorba Linda, Mr. and Mrs. Dearborn, of Anaheim; Miss Elizabeth Ackers and the honored bride.

Forest Ave. In Artists' Colony Ready

LAGUNA BEACH, July 3.—Trees were planted along Forest avenue yesterday in the business district and the newly erected ornamental light standards were painted with brooks paint.

It is expected that the current will be turned on this evening as a part of the American Legion entertainment. It is said that the pattern of standards is the only one of this kind used in the west.

The lighting of the lights and the planting of trees marks what is virtually the end of the work begun several years ago to secure the widening and paving of Forest avenue. Some work on the bridge remains to be completed, but the bridge is open for travel on the original span.

WINTERSBURG

WINTERSBURG, July 3.—Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Thiebaud had visitors Friday, their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Morton Thiebaud, and two children, and their grandson, Lauri Crenshaw, of Long Beach.

R. G. Tashima, local Japanese merchant, and his son, who have been ill with influenza and tonsillitis, are able to be up again.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Friend and family attended church services Sunday evening at Costa Mesa.

Mrs. Gardner Nichols, of Los Angeles, spent Sunday in the home of Mr. Nichols' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Nichols, and attended the Bala school program held at the local church. Mrs. Nichols' children, Barbara and Bobby, who have been spending some weeks in their grandparents home and attending the school, returned to Los Angeles in the evening with their mother, Mrs. Nichols, Buck Nichols motorizing home with them. The children are looking forward to vacation trips, Barbara leaving this week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Slack for a stay at Fallbrook, and Bobby still later to go to Sequoia park with the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitch Mitchell and three children, who have been in Arizona for sometime, returned Sunday evening to Wintersburg and are guests in the John Stinson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Keener entertained as Sunday guests Mr. Keener's niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fisher, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ellis and child of Long Beach.

Harvey Raines, who has been spending several months at Escondido, has returned home to remain over the holiday.

Mrs. Cornelius, who disposed of the Oceanview service station recently, moved this week to Santa Anna. Mrs. Cornelius has been visiting in the north with relatives since selling the station.

A special program was presented during the Sunday school hour Sunday morning at the Wintersburg Methodist church, when members of the Daily Vacation Bible school, which closed Friday following a two week's session, gave some of the work of the school. There were 32 primary pupils and 22 junior pupils enrolled in the school.

A potluck supper and reception for the pastor, the Rev. Joseph Pope and family, who have been with the local congregation but a short time, is announced for next Friday evening. The social affair is for the community in general and will be held at the church hall.

The annual picnic of all the auxiliaries of the local church was held at Anaheim Landing last Saturday with a large number in attendance. A basket lunch was enjoyed at noon and swimming and a general good time occupied the remainder of the day.

A pleasant surprise for the crowd was the arrival of the Rev. J. Scott Willmarth, former pastor of the local church and Mrs. Willmarth and children, Miss Alice Willmarth, Gardner

Card Game Discloses
News of Betrothal
To Party Guests

When Miss Myrtle Vencil entertained at her home in the Grand Central apartments, as a pleasant event of the end of the week, the party had as its special incentive, the engagement announcement of Miss Marian Schleede to Carlton Laughlin of Santa Monica.

Arrival of guests was followed by the introduction "of bridge as the amusement of the evening. Mrs. L. F. Schleede, mother of the honoree, scored high in the contest, and was rewarded with a beautiful cluster of French hand-made flowers. Second prize, won by Mrs. E. N. McGahn, was a note book with hand-made tapestry cover, while a guest prize presented Miss Schleede, was a hand-painted recipe file.

The engagement was announced in original manner, for at the close of the bridge session, a special game of cards was suggested with the person holding high score at each table, asked to deal. When the guests picked up their hands, each found an extra card wherein were the heart-enclosed words, "Miss Schleede—Mr. Laughlin."

Immediately after the romantic secret had been told, the lights were extinguished, and pink candles in flower holders, were lighted to shed their soft glow on the scene. A refreshing salad course was served, followed by ices and sweets. Miss Vencil was assisted in serving, by her sister, Miss Fern Vencil of Mainview, Tex.

Enjoying the pleasant party were the honorees, Miss Marian Schleede, Mrs. L. F. Schleede, Mrs. N. E. McGahn, Mrs. Clara Brucke, the Misses Nova Mizar, Barbara Roth, Le Veta Hegrody, Mary Wall, Evelyn Erickson, Frances Childs, Fern Vencil and the hostess, Miss Myrtle Vencil.

Betrothal News Told in San Francisco At Pretty Tea

That Miss Dora McWaters, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McWaters, 602 Orange Avenue, would wed Everett Lutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lutz, 271 Valencia street, was the pleasant news conveyed in letters just received by the families of the two young people.

Miss McWaters, who graduated from Santa Ana junior college two years ago, has since been attending the university at Berkeley, and is continuing her studies at summer school. Mr. Lutz is also a Berkeley student and a member of Alpha Epsilon. For the summer he is with the Standard Oil. Their betrothal was announced to a group of Miss McWaters' Alpha Delta Theta sorority sisters, at a smart little tea which she gave a few days ago at the St. Francis in San Francisco. No date for the wedding has been disclosed.

Miss Osborn Is Made Honoree at Party And Shower

The latest party complimenting Miss Esther Osborn and her betrothal to Lee Bailey of Yosemite Valley, was a delightful affair presented by her two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Jasper Osborn and Mrs. Hugh Osborn, last week.

The two hostesses wished their plans to come as surprise to their honoree, so it was arranged that the Jasper Osborns should entertain at a family dinner, in their home at 345 North Garnsey street. To this were bidden Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Osborn, parents of the honoree, the Misses Eva, Marie and Esther Osborn, as well as the young daughter of the home, Miss Verne Osborn.

Dinner was concluded, and a merry family party was in progress, when Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Osborn, their daughter Miss Verne, and the other party guests, arrived. In the crowd were Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wiley, Mrs. Ida Osborn, Mrs. Clara Wells, Miss Pauline Wells, Miss Marie Reeves, Miss Myrtle Reeves, all of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Trindie of Long Beach, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Osborn of Lakeview.

All enjoyed a lively evening of games, which culminated with one wherein kitchens and their furnishings, were given special stress. This was shown to be most appropriate when Miss Osborn was showered with many pieces of kitchenware from her assembled friends.

After all the gifts had been adored, there was an interval of music, during which Hugh Osborn and others, sang, with Miss Marie Osborn at the piano. The final joys were served by the two hostesses, to conform with an orchid and gold color scheme, established by the use of orchid asters and vivid coreopsis.

Santa Ana Bridegroom At Pretty Wedding In Riverside

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Pearl of 306 Cypress avenue, have returned from Riverside, where they were among the guests late last week, at the wedding of their son, Harlan R. Pearl, to Miss Mary Genevieve Cree, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Cree of Riverside.

The ceremony was a late afternoon event in the home of the bride's uncle, Harry W. Hawes. While richly-tinted summer flowers were used decoratively throughout the home, the floral bower where the rites were conducted, was fashioned from tall pink hollyhocks, interspersed with gleaming pink tapers.

Miss Cree's gown was of airy georgette whose rhinestone trimmings gleamed through the soft folds of a wedding veil worn by her mother, twenty-five years ago. Her flowers were bride roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Pauline Cree and Miss Dorothy Osborne in flowered chiffons in peach and lavender tones, and carrying pink and orchid sweet peas, were bridesmaids, while Mrs. Meredith M. Cree in blue lowered chiffon with a cluster of dolphiniums and gladioli, was honor matron. Chester Wilson served Mr. Pearl as best man. Dr. W. W. Catherwood, pastor of the Riverside First Baptist church, read the marriage service.

A wedding supper was served, after which Mr. Pearl and his bride left for a honeymoon trip. They will make their home in Riverside where Mr. Pearl is with one of the business houses. His bride graduated this year from Riverside junior college, and was president of the Associated Women Students.

Returns From Missouri With Charming Bride

That old saying that "Romance awaits at the end of the trail," evidently held good in the case of Miss Sohma Graubach, a charming Missouri girl who last summer was the guest of her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kimball, 921 West Fifth street—and while here on the coast, lost her heart to a Santa Ana, Horace M. Lee of the Central fire station.

And now the popular visitor has returned to Santa Ana, this time as a bride, Mrs. Horace M. Lee, the marriage having taken place early in June in Webster Grove, Mo. and the happy couple reaching this city on Sunday evening, after a leisurely automobile trip homeward, stopping on route with friends in Sherman, Tex.

When Mr. Lee asked for an extended vacation, and left for the east with Mr. and Mrs. Kimball and their mother, Mrs. C. W. Kimball, his associates at Central station suspected that he might be planning to return to them as a Benedict. The party motored directly to Webster Grove, where the wedding was a pretty affair, of June 15, in the First Baptist church of that city.

Guests at the wedding recall the bride's charming appearance in a daisy gown of white georgette, with a white picture hat and her arms filled with roses and lilies of the valley. Her close friend, Miss Helen Hohenreiter, acted as maid, while Sidney Kimball was best man.

The MIXING BOWL by ANN MEREDITH

Candle Rack For That Birthday Cake

"How old is Anne?" is a touchy subject with most women...you will notice that few women celebrate their birthdays after 30 and if they exercise their right to vote they will admit to the fact being 21-and-up. But Father, having no restrictions as to age, can do the honors for the family every year.

Putting the candle on a birthday cake is some job when thirty is passed. Some bright soul conceived the idea of making a candle rack to be placed around the outside of the cake plate.

The rack is made of a thin circle of wood, pierced at intervals with holes in which the candles are set. A number of sizes are available and one may space the candles according to the age of the celebrant.

Please do not write and ask me where this candle rack may be purchased. I do not firm names, but any good department store will carry them in their china department.

TODAY'S RECIPE DELMONICO PUDDING

2 level teaspoons gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
½ cup boiling water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 egg—separate
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup hot milk
Few grains salt
1 cup whipped cream
Fresh berries

First of all we will make the custard: Separate the egg, use the yolk for the custard and whip the white very stiff, to be used later.

Heat the milk in a double boiler, beat the egg yolk, sugar and salt to a froth and when the milk is boiling hot, stir in, and keep stirring until the custard coats the spoon.

Dissolve the gelatin in the cold water and then in the boiling water. It should be stirred until the grains are well softened up. Add to the custard as soon as it is taken from the fire, let stand until cool and partially set, then whip in the stiffly beaten egg white, and lemon juice, pour into a mould wet in cold water, and set aside to chill.

A CANDLE RACK FOR THE BIRTHDAY CAKE IS EASY TO MAKE

This could be prepared on Saturday evening for Sunday dinner dessert. It improves leaving it to chill that long.

Unmold and mask with whipped cream, slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla. Cut in slices to serve and serve fresh berries with it.

There are 1800 calories and the pudding serves four people. 1100 of the calories are found in the whipped cream; if energy calories are taboo with you, the cream might be omitted and a sauce made from crushed berries used. The dessert could then be safely eaten by the overweight.

Preserves and conserves.... doesn't that sound enticing? Makes one want to get busy filling up the most interesting shelf in the fruit closet.

The WOMAN'S DAY
by ALICE NORMAN

Why does suicide never seem to be a simple question? But here's one: a certain city decided to find an answer. Must be the same question, a committee to find out why was appointed.

The various agencies reported that their relief budget was especially depleted in spring and fall by husband and father suicides.

"Find out why," they told the committee.

The committee investigated and made a voluminous report. Boiled down, the report bluntly said that most men committed suicide because of the economic strain of supporting a family.

They said that the suicide wave was especially noticeable in spring and because of the seasonal bills—bills for new clothes needs with change of season.

The report said that extravagant, money-wasteful wives were responsible for 75 per cent of all male suicides.

Now this report may or may not apply to all cities. It may not be accurate; it may be sensational and much exaggerated. But whether money-foolish wives are responsible or not for 75 per cent of all male suicides, none of us can dodge the fact that they are responsible for considerable family trouble.

I know personally one suicide case because of this fact. There were three unusually handsome children in the family. From the time the mother began embroidering silk forget-me-nots on their booties, she seemed to live for nothing but the comments of anybody upon her children.

The children not only must be dressed in the best clothes on the market, but the children must have their dancing lessons, their summer camps, their this and that and everything that children of the very well-to-do and rich have for their progeny.

Other people's children sold papers after school, tended babies, ran errands and helped buy their school books and clothes with their earnings. But not these children, and if I told you what the father earned, you wouldn't believe it!

If the father ever remonstrated at all, the mother howled that he didn't love his children or how could he bear seeing his children not have what other people's children had.

Debt was the only way out and when debt got too much for him, the distraught father sent a bullet through his heart, leaving the widow to weep and moan on the neighbor's shoulders.

Stories like this are exactly why I believe working girls make the best wives. A girl who has known what it means to get and keep a job and earn her own living knows what it means to a man, too. She'll spend wisely and save for the damp days.

Women who step into marriage from their father's homes where they always have been supported take support as a matter of course; they haven't the slightest idea that money has limits or can not always and eternally be available. A job is something a man always has, they think.

The Tinies thanked the hunter and they all rushed up to shake his hand. "Twas very nice of you to free us from that cage," said one. "We fell asleep in it last night. The monkeys then caged us all up tight and took us for a bumpy ride, which isn't any fun."

The hunter laughed. "Well, monkeys," said he, "I am full of tricks as they can be. I started on a hunting trip and left my cage behind, I planned to travel 'bout a mile and then come back here, after while, and lock up my animals that I might chance to find."

"A monkey watches things you do and then they try to do them too. They've seen me go into the cage and then come out again. That's why they locked you up. 'Twas slick, and really quite a clever trick. I'm very fond of monkeys, though they're pesky, now and then."

And then the man looked in a tree where lots of monkeys he could see. "Hello there, monkeys! Come on down here! You won't be hurt," he cried. The monkeys squeaked and looked around, and then they dropped down to the ground. It wasn't long till several of them gathered at his side.

"And now," the hunter shouted loud, "I have a treat for all this crowd. Today, you know, is July Fourth. It's Independence Day. I have a pinwheel right nearby. We'll make it shoot sparks to the sky." This pleased the Tinies very much and they all cried, "Hurrah!"

The hunter nailed the pinwheel spinach with lemon juice, cabbage salad, strawberry bread pudding, milk, coffee.

Cornstarch or gelatine chocolate pudding can be used with marshmallow-mint sauce. Add one or two drops of oil of peppermint to any preferred marshmallow sauce. Cheese Ball and Watercress Salad One cup cottage cheese, 1/4 cup chopped nuts, 4 tablespoons tomato catsup; 1 scant teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 1 bunch creas, mayonnaise.

The cheese should be very dry and unsalted. Combine cheese, catsup, nuts, salt and paprika. Chill thoroughly and form into small balls. Serve three or four balls on a bed of carefully washed and crisped watercress. Drop a spoonful of mayonnaise at one side or in the center between the balls and serve.

PRIMROSE PATH

AT THE THEATER

WEST END THEATER

Clara Bow, the clever and versatile young actress who heads the all-star cast of "The Primrose Path," the picture coming to the West End tonight, tells an interesting story about the beauty contest which proved an open sesame to film honors for her.

When one of the fan magazines announced a beauty contest, Clara, then a high school student in Brooklyn, N. Y., persuaded her father to let her enter the picture. The would-be screen actress wanted to look sweet and demure and pretty. But the photographer looked over the hoydenish Clara, and voiced another opinion.

"Kid," he told her, "you're no angel. You just look saucy and you'll win."

2-PRE-EMPTIVE BIDS

Although the occasions are few, there are times when pre-emptive bidding is necessary and advisable.

When, then, shall two or more in a suit be bid originally?

Should you ever bid two originally?

When should three or more be bid originally?

What is the necessity of opening a bid of more than one?

The object of pre-empting is to shut out bidding on the part of the adversaries and prevent them from arriving at their best game-going declaration by interchanging information. It must be done in fear of something, else there is no necessity of pre-empting.

The stronger your hand, the less advisable it is to pre-empt!

All authorities agree that a bid of two in a major or minor suit will not shut out bidding. This being so, what is the necessity of bidding two? Some experts bid two when holding A K Q X X in a minor or major suit. Those experts who advocate it assert that it will give partner accurate information as to this particular holding.

They all agree that you should not bid two except when holding A K Q X X, and then only when you do not hold material strength in the other suits. Exactly what strength may be held in other suits is not definitely determined.

The disadvantage of bidding two is that it may shut out valuable information from your partner. Partner may hesitate to go to three hearts after your two-spade bid, but game may be made in hearts and not in spades. The expert may, under certain circumstances, bid two spades, recognizing the psychological moment for it. Some authorities recognize the two bid as a conventional when holding a suit of six cards including the Ace-King-Queen, but thunders in different localities have not generally accepted it.

Modern authorities agree that it is better to bid two spades, recognizing the psychological moment for it. Some authorities recognize the two bid as a conventional when holding a suit of six cards including the Ace-King-Queen, but thunders in different localities have not generally accepted it.

SHE CLIMBS ON FENDER-WAGON LITERALLY; PAYS FINE OF $10

LAGUNA BEACH, July 3.—A girl, 16, was climbing onto the fender of a moving car, and drove it into a concrete wall, it was announced today by Judge Leon R. Yankwich.

The driver of the car, Mrs. Rose Gammie, 21, from Midland, Texas, driving after the village curfew, had with indifference commanded the driver to stop. Her husband, Harry, was going too fast, and they locked her in.

She was fined $10 after pleading guilty to disturbing the peace.

SEVEN OIL COMPANIES ARE ENJOINED FROM POLLUTING BEACH WATERS WITH WASTE

Sixty-eight oil companies operating in the Huntington Beach field were enjoined from polluting the beach with waste oil in an injunction granted in Los Angeles yesterday by Judge Leon R. Yankwich. The injunction was sought by the California fish and game commission, which has been waging a bitter war against oil concerns allowing their refuse oil to flow into the ocean.

Judge Yankwich's decision followed a short trial held last week. Witnesses were produced by the fish and game commission to show that oil has been running from the Huntington Beach field into the Pacific ocean and polluting the water. Judge Yankwich and attorneys for both sides visited the district.

Judge Yankwich refused to grant an injunction against two companies, the Pan American Oil company and the Petroleum company, on the ground that those premises were clean.

The fish and game commission plans on seeking injunctions against oil companies in several other fields in its campaign to keep the beaches free from oil. Judge Yankwich issued the following statement in granting the injunction: "The evidence in the case disclosed the fact that since the institution of the proceedings many of the oil companies have endeavored to minimize the flow of oil into the street gutters at Huntington Beach which eventually finds its way into the ocean. This was confirmed by a visit to the premises."

Further efforts on the part of the companies against whom the injunction is issued should do away with the pollution of the waters. The Huntington Beach oil field can be made cleaner than it has been in the past and is now. It is to be hoped that this injunction will accomplish that purpose."

BASEBALL FANS ASKED NOT TO DOUBLE PARK

Baseball fans attending the night games at the Sixth and Olive streets bowl have drawn the ire of the Santa Ana police department by parking their automobiles double across streets and in private driveways, according to L. C. Rogers, chief of police.

Rogers said that some streets have actually been blocked by the double parking and that owners of these cars would find tags on their machines if it continued.

Two officers were sent to the park last night to investigate the complaints that have been made and several arrests were made, Rogers said.

MAKES FIDDLE EACH YEAR BUT HE CAN'T PLAY

OAKLAND, Calif., July 3.—The entire life of John Gordon, 25, of Oakland, has been devoted to making violins, although he cannot play the instrument.

His life long ambition has been to make fine violins but he has never taken the time from his labors to learn to play, believing that he would rather be a "maker of fine fiddles" than a performer.

Gordon makes one instrument a year but instead of turning his efforts into financial gain for himself he gives the violins to men who befriended him in the days when he was a poor boy trying to cultivate his art and at the same time make a living.

When Gordon was a boy of 14 in Ireland, he began to make violins. His first efforts were unsuccessful.

In 1888 he worked his way to America as a coal passer on a steamer in order to obtain a piece of curly maple wood for an instrument. The return trip to his home was made on the steamer that carried the news to Europe of Lincoln's assassination.

He later returned to America and devoted his time to various ways of making a living but always used his spare time to build violins.

A book on the art of violin making which he found changed his methods and he became very successful. Musicians have declared Gordon's instruments to be exceptionally fine.

SAN DIEGO POLICE PROBING ACCIDENT

San Diego county police are investigating the automobile accident Saturday night in which Frans Hout, 46, former major league baseball player, was fatally injured, and his two companions, G. Baumgarten, of Los Angeles, and Joseph Trotter, Oceanide, were injured.

According to Baumgarten, who was driving, their car was forced off the road by another machine.

An inquest will be held Friday at Oceanide. The accident happened a few miles south of the county line.

HOPE TO SPEED GERMANY SOON TO LAUNCH TWO HOUR IN BOAT NEW CRUISERS INSTITUTION

LONDON, July 3.—A speed of 100 miles an hour may be reached by a British motor boat during the races for the British International Trophy at Detroit in September.

With this aim in view Miss Marion Barbara Cartairs, famous British speed-boat enthusiast, has had two new racing boats built, in both of which the Napier Lion engine, which was responsible for Britain's Schneider Cup victory and Captain Campbell's automobile record, is the principal feature.

Both boats, Estelle I and Estelle II, have been named after Miss Cartairs' American mother, formerly Estelle Bostwick of New York. Of different size and design, the speed craft are expected to give the world record figures on the water.

But they are not Miss Cartairs' trump card. The boats will be tested on the great expanse of fresh water on Lake Windermere, in Westmoreland. Miss Cartairs will be at the wheel of the boats during their trials, and will study the functions of every part of them. Then a third boat, Estelle III, will be built, embodying all the best points in Estelle I and Estelle II.

Will Drive It Herself
In this way Miss Cartairs hopes to produce the world's fastest speed-boat, which she intends to drive herself in the International Trophy races. All three boats are entered for the trophy, Estelle I and Estelle II being piloted by her.

Miss Cartairs' mechanic during the races will be her inseparable racing companion, Joe Harris, a sturdy old salt type of British sailor who has accompanied her in all her races. Joe was with Miss Cartairs when their boat overturned in the second race at Cannes, and the pair had to swim for their lives. So accustomed are their friends to seeing them constantly together in racing craft, that they are frequently referred to as "the two Jones in a boat."

A second boat will be piloted by Captain Marshall, who will have no mechanic. F. J. Beadle, designer of all Miss Cartairs' craft. Beadle's father designed one of the boats which competed in the first International Trophy race in 1902. Arthur Bray will be the skipper of the other boat for which the mechanic has yet to be selected. Both Marshall and Bray are prominent in the speed-boat world, and hold good reputations for naval motor boat competitions.

Weed Thin and Light
During an inspection of the first two boats in the building sheds of E. H. Saunders, Ltd., at Cowes, Isle of Wright, the United Press learned that the designer's aim was to produce boats of extraordinary lightness, compact in construction, streamlined to reduce resistance to a minimum, yet of remarkably high power.

So thin and light is the wood employed in the construction of the vessels that the department in which they were built has been maintained at an even temperature of 60 degrees throughout the building period in order to prevent any possibility of warping. Estelle I is 26 feet long with a beam of 5 feet 6 inches. She is shallowly stepped straight astern the boat and has a drive direct to the propeller. Estelle II is the shorter boat, having a length of 21 feet with a beam of 6 feet. Her step is deeper than that of her sister boat, and her air screw shaft points towards the bow, being driven through a gear box with a 1 to 1 ratio.

The petrol tanks on both boats have a capacity for 36 gallons, and are situated between the engine and the pilot's cockpit, while the oil capacity is 5 gallons. Weights 1000 lbs.

The engine develops 1000 horsepower, the highest power ever developed in a single unit in a motor boat. The weights of the boats, engine, fuel, starter, and generator is only 2800 to

FAMOUS MINING TOWN SOON TO BE DESERTED

BY CHARLES V. KINTER
United Press Staff Correspondent

REDDING, Calif., July 3.—The final chapters of the history of Horsetown, formerly a thriving gold mining community is about to come to an end.

About 50 years ago more than 2000 people called Horsetown home. During the Civil war one of the few telegraph offices in this section of the west was located at the mining camp, and the Portland, Ore., newspapers depended on its facilities for their news of the struggle between the North and South.

At its zenith Horsetown was one of the "wide open" towns of the frontier. Saloons and dance halls furnished the entertainment for the miners when they came in from the surrounding diggings, while the community boasted one of the few schools for their children of the state.

Mines of the district turned out fortunes in gold for the men who toiled in the placer and underground excavations. The gravel and veins were exceptionally rich.

Now everything is changed. Horsetown is deserted, while the hills have practically been scraped bare of the flecks of gold which brought the town prosperity during its early days.

Thirty years ago a dredging company began operations after the washes and hills had been worked over by individual miners.

Even the townsite was purchased by the dredge owners and the individual buildings were moved aside to allow working of the dirt where they rested.

Owners of individual claims in the townsite willingly sold to the dredge company, considering themselves fortunate to obtain something for their property holdings in the deserted town.

There was one man, however, who would not sell. Robert Boyd, a prospector, still eked out his existence from his claims in the townsite, and it was predicted that he will soon be the only resident of the vicinity.

So unprofitable are the efforts of individual miners that a visiting geologist who offered fifty cents each for certain fossils in nearby formations caused the diggings to be deserted while the workmen scanned the hills for the desired specimens.

New University Hall Rises Soon

BERKELEY, July 3.—Plans for Giannini hall, the building to be erected at the University of California to house the work of the Giannini foundation, are being prepared within a short time, according to announcement by the regents of the university. Five hundred thousand dollars was given by A. P. Giannini at the Bank of Italy for the building, and one million dollars was given at the same time as a foundation for research in agricultural economics. The gift was made for the purpose of studying the problems of the California farmer, both as to production and disposal of crops.

Legal Notice

NOTICE OF FILING LIST OF UNPAID ASSESSMENTS.
Garrett Street, Eureka, Lawyer

Pursuant to Statute notice is hereby given that the Warrant and Assessment recorded May 29th, 1928, for the work done and improvement made by Person or Persons under a contract awarded to him January 23rd, 1928, on a portion of Garfield Street, Pomeroy Street, Halladay Street, and 1st Street, which work was ordered done and made by Resolution No. 1854, passed January 3rd, 1928, has been returned to the Street Superintendent of the City of Santa Ana together with the payment of all assessments paid upon the assessment. After the full execution of Thirty (30) days from the date of service, when the Street Superintendent duly made up and filed with the undersigned, Clerk of the City, the City of Santa Ana, and the City of Anaheim, there will be a complete list of all assessments unpaid until the time of assessment, which list is and remains on file in my office. Reference is hereby made to Resolution of Council No. 1854, passed December 12th, 1927, for a description of the work therein mentioned.

Mines of the district turned out fortunes in gold for the men who toiled in the placer and underground excavations. The gravel and veins were exceptionally rich.

Now everything is changed. Horsetown is deserted, while the hills have practically been scraped bare of the flecks of gold which brought the town prosperity during its early days.

Thirty years ago a dredging company began operations after the washes and hills had been worked over by individual miners.

Even the townsite was purchased by the dredge owners and the individual buildings were moved aside to allow working of the dirt where they rested.

Owners of individual claims in the townsite willingly sold to the dredge company, considering themselves fortunate to obtain something for their property holdings in the deserted town.

There was one man, however, who would not sell. Robert Boyd, a prospector, still eked out his existence from his claims in the townsite, and it was predicted that he will soon be the only resident of the vicinity.

So unprofitable are the efforts of individual miners that a visiting geologist who offered fifty cents each for certain fossils in nearby formations caused the diggings to be deserted while the workmen scanned the hills for the desired specimens.

Canadian Pacific ships, and from there will go direct to Detroit in a grain boat.

Asked how she intended to dress for the Trophy races, she laughingly replied, "Well, one gets used to big engines, that I think a bathing suit would be fine. It would also be very nice if I should be so fortunate to be an important participant in the races."

She added, "I intend to wear the same outfit as the above."

On and after this date I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by my wife, Mrs. McCoy's Shoppe.

EVENING SALUTATION
It matter not how long we live, but how.
—Bailey.

A PLAIN CHALLENGE

Addresses were delivered in the pulpits of four of the leading churches of Santa Ana on Sunday, urging on behalf of citizenship, that the electorate vote for some other candidate than Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York.

These addresses on the Sabbath, the nearest Sunday to the fourth, were not of a partisan character, but rather from the point of view of citizenship. One of these talks indeed, was delivered by a Democrat, who possibly has never voted for a Republican candidate for President in his life.

The action is very significant—when in a city the size of Santa Ana such pronouncements are made and other churches are making plans for similar meetings. When denominational bodies over the country are making an open and frank stand against the candidacy of an individual there must be great reason for it.

The reason is perfectly clear. If Mr. Smith is right, then the work of the men and laborers of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Anti-Saloon League and the various bodies of Christian people and the Independent Order of Good Templars and the men and women who have devoted their lives to the abolition of the drink evil have been wrong.

In other words, these people have had a plain challenge placed before them. This is a challenge to our institutions, to our character, to the facts, as they appear on the books, to individual institutions, police courts, closed drink cure institutions and all the multitude of witnesses that furnish evidence of the value of the work that has been done.

The challenge will become more clear as this campaign goes on.

Every pulpit in the country will become a rostrum from which philippics will be delivered on behalf of temperance and prohibition, which necessarily means against the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Party lines are being broken down. Party loyalties are becoming forgotten. A higher and deeper loyalty is becoming apparent, well illustrated by the words of Benjamin F. Bledsoe, former United States District Judge of Los Angeles, a Democratic leader, who said, in part, today on this very subject:

"Defiance and disrespect of the national prohibition law openly paraded and openly boasted, inevitably incite disrespect and defiance of all law."

"The seed so unspuriously sown is everywhere producing harvest. We are gradually drifting into a condition of lawlessness—of mind as well as of deed—which, if persisted in, spells for complete disaster."

"The remedy lies in a tightening instead of a loosening of law enforcement. It calls for leadership that shall set a personal example in addition to prescribing an official direction."

"In this emergency, Governor Smith of New York, an open, avowed, confirmed wet, has been nominated for President to the party to which I have ever given allegiance. His election, despite platform pronouncements and personal assurances, will be a direct and positive encouragement to many of our people further to flout the law as represented by the Eighteenth Amendment and the National Prohibition Act."

"His pledge to urge and aid in the modification or repeal of the prohibition law constitutes not only a step backward, in my judgment, but it will inevitably negative any efforts toward effective enforcement which he might authorize. His deliberate contribution to the repeal of the State Enforcement Act of New York, in consequence of which effective enforcement there has almost been paralyzed, was heralded as one of the greatest victories of the enemies of prohibition ever won. His election to the Chief Magistracy of the republic confronting us, would be an ever greater calamity."

When conscience and the obligations of patriotism combine to cause able-thinking men to leave life-long alliances, such as Judge Bledsoe is doing, it means that a moral crisis has been reached which can be met by only one answer from the voters of America.

THE WAR GUILT CONTROVERSY

Who caused the Great War? The controversy will not down. According to the Treaty of Versailles, Germany signed on the dotted line that she assumed the sole guilt for starting the war. But she signed under duress. Her representatives signed with their tongues in their cheeks. It is the old story of Galileo, who, while in prison, was forced to recant and deny that the world moved, but under his breath is reported to have said, "But it does move."

We have always held that the inclusion of Germany's sole guilt in the treaty was nothing more than a political joker. The war hates were still acute when the treaty was signed. Lloyd George was facing a new election in England. He saw he could win on the war hates, so he inserted in the treaty the sole guilt clause and called for the surrender of the Kaiser to the allies.

They were both gestures. Lloyd George never wanted the Kaiser. More than that, it would have been an embarrassment had Holland surrendered him.

It can be said with equal certainty that the sole guilt theory was simply a sop to the people shell-shocked by the losses and the nerve strain of the long and destructive war.

Technically, Germany began the war. But the war was the natural outcome of the economic rivalries of the great powers and the imperialistic policies of the European nations. Great armaments have been a symptom of the great economic struggle.

The Great War has changed, it is beginning to change, and the whole matter of the war is to be reconsidered. It is a question of the economic, not the at Potsdam in which the Kaiser was said to have cast the die for war was never held. The various documents issued by the warring governments to justify their entrance into the war are now known to have been incomplete. In all of them were serious omissions. These omissions have been discovered by the historians.

There was no justification for the violation of the neutrality of Belgium by Germany, but the fear of Russian mobilization and the supposed collusion of France and Belgium, was the occasion of a fear that could be allayed only by a drastic measure like the invasion of Belgium.

The conflict of opinions and the hates of the war recede into the background, we are coming more and more to see the whole situation in the large. Already the little child who was born at the outbreak of the war 14 years ago knows very little of the temper of that period. Memories are short, and the scars of battle, like the barren and torn battlefields, are soon smoothed over by the healing hand of nature.

We may read dispassionately, therefore, the arguments and the facts which are being brought out by the contenders in this debate. History will unfold all the facts, and without doubt, oncoming generations will be able to answer the question. Ultimately we shall learn that the war was the inevitable consequence of policies which all the great powers had adopted. To that extent all were more or less responsible for the great catastrophe.

We wish it might be possible to assert that the lessons, the tragic lessons, of this monumental folly have been learned. The same policies which brought on the Great War are still finding powerful advocates. Only an equal aggressiveness on the part of those who believe that the world is a great neighborhood, and that the wrongs and sufferings of one part affect all equally will avert another similar crash in the future.

Who remembers the old days when ladies used to faint instead of swearing?

THE CHURCH AND PEACE PROGRAM

Secretary of State Kellogg, in an address at a celebration of the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Dutch Reformed Church, appeals directly for the support of the church for the outlawry of war as an instrument of national policy. He said, "In the name of the government of the United States, I bespeak the continued support of this and every other church in the present movement for the promotion of world peace."

This is another instance of the power and influence of the church for the betterment of mankind and the conditions under which we live. Mr. Kellogg says further that "The power of church members permeates the whole fabric of civilization and their authority is not confined within the limits of any single state."

This is not the only time when the United States has appealed to the church to sustain and support it in a great moral program. More often the church has led in the formation of such programs and the government has been compelled to listen to the demands of the people, aroused by the convictions and pronouncements of the church.

The appeal of the Secretary seems superfluous, for the church has always been against war, when true to its own creed, and will support any program honestly proposed to outlaw war.

It is almost with amazement, therefore, that we read certain editorials advising churches to refrain from such activities as selecting presidents, enforcing prohibition and supporting a movement for world peace or from supporting any government program.

Given the acknowledged altruistic basis of the church in its overwhelming influence upon civilization and the righteousness of a government program, it is silly to say they should keep quiet on such matters and "Keep to their function of teaching the word of God."

The founder of the church was the "Prince of Peace" and the church will continue to uphold the banner of peace even though the nations of the earth are at last coming to their senses and are beginning to make peace a political program.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

BINDERS

We are not careful enough to save the children from binding themselves with whims that become stronger than chains. When a little child says, "I don't like fat people," we smile. The child notes the smile and remarks again, "I don't like fat people." So is born the deep rooted dislike of fat people this person is to bear throughout his life and which is going to handicap him accordingly. There are many fat people about and they are quite unconscious of any reason why anybody should dislike them. The only person who is hurt by the binder on his mind is the child who bears it. Nobody is helped and he is hurt.

Watch the little child timidly touch a cat or a dog. He draws back his hand and looks up into the face of the adult standing by. According to what he reads in that face he retreats from the animal or he again touches it. Either he is going to like the touch, like the creature, or he is going to withdraw his hand, wrinkle up his face and cry in fear. If he binds the fear of animals upon his mind he is going to suffer by it for years to come.

Another child pushes his plate away and says, "I don't like milk pudding." In a day or two he hears his mother say, "Billie does not like milk pudding so we will serve him something else." His binder is firmly in place. For the rest of his days, unless somebody takes a hand and changes the situation, he is going to hate milk pudding.

Whims that are indulged, noticed, petted, permitted to hold, end by becoming binders on the minds of the children. Then you have the food-tusslers, the bed-time-wakers, the travel-sick, the dog-fearing, the fur-tearing, the darkfearing, the odd one, the uncertain child who is forever afraid that something might hurt him, the child who cannot ride backward, the child who must have one person put him to bed—nobody else will do—the child who must have a certain spoon and glass or he won't eat. Their name is legion. They are fastening binders of habit, of fear, of pettiness upon themselves in consequence of which they lose friends and joy and health and more.

Some children are born with certain fears. Those children are readily known and are to be trained and helped in all kindness. Some children, most children, are inclined to distinguish themselves by being different, and these are the ones who wear their differences by showing them you are not interested, not threatened. Let them toward downright shyness and timidity.

The Spirit of 1928More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A MAN OF METTLE
Scientists have now decided that people need a little copper to keep them in condition.

When I found I felt logy and sluggish and slow, And observed I was prone to recoil From plying for more than an hour or so

Any mental or manual toil, My doctor assumed a disquieting frown

When I asked what my trouble might be; Your blood is too thick; you are weak and run down; You ought to take iron," said he.

So I filled up and swallowed a ten-penny nail.

Taking four or five fillings each day,

But still I was ailing and listless and pale

And seemed to grow worse every way.

Again to my doctor I went for advice

And the good man seriously de creed,

When he'd thumped on my back and my chest once or twice; "Perhaps it is copper you need."

So I gulped down a cent in my coffee that night

And calmly awaited results

But my interest in labor remained very slight

And I barely could feel my own pulse.

And still, though I've taken a dollar or two—

I started the dosage last fall—

I am low depressed and disgusted and blue

And I don't feel like working at all.

I have thought I might go to my doctor again

To ask if I ought not to drink

Some tin in my tea or white lead now and then

Or perhaps a weak extract of zinc.

But my income is small and I'm filled with the fear,

If I seek his advice, I'll be told

That I'll speedily finish my earthly career

If I don't make my diet on gold!

PASSPORT NUISANCE

The great problem of the future is to what government Any government naturally tends to be a nuisance. For several reasons.

First, it is essentially second-class business and attracts second-class minds. For it is only maintaining order. All government, including kings, presidents and officeholders, generally, are in fact but a kind of policemen.

It has always been the fault of states to magnify their office; the fly on the cowcatcher thinks he is running the locomotive.

Louis the Fourteenth, the absolute old bumbler, who best typified the ruler of the Old Order, exclaimed, "The State? I am the State!"

That is the average officeholder's point of view.

Wars are caused by this pettiness vanity.

Restrictions on trade, which are the roots of war, spring from the same ground.

Their principal effect is to bindle with the hard-working people who are producing, to bindle with the Natural Laws of Business which if let alone would work out the greatest amount of prosperity to the greatest number of people.

One of the most flagrant examples of this is the passport system.

There never was any use for a passport, except between nations.

Such travel ought to be unrestricted, free and natural. For it is the salvation of the race, just as the sun is the salvation of the world.

Travel should be natural, simple, direct, without the petty prejudices and ignorances of the passport system.

A European newspaper recently said that the history of the whole passport system as a means of control against the unrestricted movements of men is a history of the most complete and rapid decay.

It was proved by the discovery that the passport system was a mere pretense, a mere sham, a mere farce.

With proper official checks and examinations, the whole system of most of the countries of the world is a mere farce.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.

It is a mere farce, a mere pretense, a mere sham.
